

The buzz that is helping build more sustainable campuses

Published 4/20/2023 by Stephanie Conte

It's easy to forget about bees – one of nature's smaller creatures that have a profound role in food production and biodiversity – but they make a big buzz at Seneca.

Over the past 10 years, Seneca's beekeeping has grown from five hives to 60, and the yellow-and-black striped insects have been busy.

Read more about Seneca's bees

tags : feature-stories