

Seneca SCM team places first at ASCM competition

Published 11/1/2023 by Stephanie Conte

On Saturday Oct. 28, four teams of Seneca students, competed at the Association for Supply Chain Management (ASCM) Toronto Chapter Case Competition.

Hosted at George Brown College, the competition saw participation from 24 teams and more than 90 students, with representation from McMaster University, Durham College, George Brown College, Humber College, Lambton College, University of British Columbia and York University. Teams were divided by representation for the colleges and universities.

In the college division, one of Seneca's SCM teams placed first, followed by George Brown and Humber College. Congratulations to SCM students Christien Rivard, Sathesan Govindaraj and Ajay Santhosh Muthukumar for representing Seneca — we are #SenecaProud.

Thank you to faculty coaches Mary Drane, Jim Wyer and Debi Tziatis, who helped prepare and guide students for this competition.

tags : student-news