

Update on in-person, flexible, and hybrid courses for winter 2022

Published 1/13/2022 by Stephanie Conte

As Seneca continues to respond to the spread of the Omicron variant, we are planning to resume on-campus academic activities when it is safe to do so.

Currently, on-campus activities are being delayed until Monday, Jan. 24. However, this is subject to change if necessary.

Seneca has reviewed all hybrid, flexible, and in-person courses and has identified which ones will remain online and which ones will have in-person learning activities after Jan. 24.

There are no changes for courses being delivered exclusively online.

Please check Student Home to see if your courses will remain online or will include in-person learning activities. Be sure to review your schedule on a week-to-week basis. As well, your professors will let you know if you need to come to campus.

After Study Week (March 4), we will update you if any additional course delivery changes are needed.

A reminder: the last day to add courses to your timetable is Friday, Jan. 14. Please review the full list of important academic dates. Consult your student adviser if you have any questions.

Finally, please check Seneca's COVID-19 website for the latest updates on the pandemic.
