

Invitation to participate in research study on motion sickness

Published 1/10/2023 by Stephanie Conte

Have you ever experienced motion sickness?

Seneca students are invited to participate in a York University research study on motion sickness. The experiment will involve participants reading from a mobile device during a simulated driving-scenario using a motion based car simulator. Participants will be required to wear comfortable clothing as sensors will be placed on the body and objective measures, including head and body movements, will be recorded and analysed.

The experiment will take place at 19 Allstate Parkway and around one hour to complete. Participation is voluntary and individuals will be compensated $15 for participation plus $10 for transportation.

Fill out the online form to participate.

Questions? Email reb@senecacollege.ca.

tags : student-news