

Seneca, Let's Talk

Published 1/25/2023 by Stephanie Conte

How are you doing? Four simple words that can make a big difference in someone's day.

It is important to talk to friends, colleagues, professionals and loved ones when it comes to mental health. Seneca will be joining the conversation through a variety of events hosted by Athletics & Recreation, Seneca Student Federation, Student Life and Counselling & Accessibility Services, in support of Bell Let's Talk Day.

Students and employees can participate in events about wellness, counselling and accessibility, as well as mental health throughout the day.

Learn more about the events taking place at senecacollege.ca/letstalk.

Remember, the conversation doesn't have to end on today. There are many resources available to you if you need help or would like someone to talk to, including the .

Join the Seneca community and let's keep the conversation going – use the hashtag #BellLetsTalk on social media throughout the day.
