

A passion for sustainability starts a journey from Colombia to Seneca

Published 2/2/2023 by Stephanie Conte

Studying at Seneca was Camila Acevedo's first step toward creating a more sustainable world.

Ms. Acevedo earned a business degree in her home country of Colombia in 2019. Short stints in banking and marketing revealed that she wanted to be on a different path.

"I have always been passionate about the environment," she said. "When I graduated, I thought about what I could do to link business with the environment, and that's when I found sustainability."
